

Proprietary Interests Policy:

It is the policy of CCTC that the Proprietary Interest of Trainers/Instructors be disclosed.

The Provider has a policy that discloses to learners, prior to the start of the learning event, any instructor's proprietary interest in products, instruments, devices, services or materials discussed, as well as the source of any compensation related to the presentation.

Purpose:

This policy is intended to maintain compliance with all local, state and federal regulations, as well as a high standard of professional conduct throughout the organization.

Process/Procedures:

The Proprietary Interests Policy is located on our website, on all training content and Self-study Guides and is disclosed to learners visually and verbally to all learners. The facilitator has the responsibility to disclose this policy to learners prior to the learning event.

Examples of appropriate disclosures are the following:

- 1) Child Care Training Consultants, LLC requires all facilitators to disclose proprietary interest in a product, instrument, device, service or materials discussed during a Child Care Training learning event, and to disclose the source of any third-party compensation related to the presentation.
- 2) Facilitators certify that the material contained in their materials, presentations and instructional sessions are original and created by the instructor, and in cases where materials have been used from other sources, proper documentation is provided and proper credit is given to the original sources.
- 3) Child Care Training Consultants, LLC will not tolerate any violation of copyright or intellectual property rules and will take steps to sanction any Child Care Training Consultants, LLC facilitator who does not follow established protocols for obtaining permission to use and/or reference work created by others.
- 4) Facilitators agree to disclose to participants any proprietary interest in any product, instrument, device, service or materials discussed in the learning event. Violators of this policy may be excluded from future Child Care Training Consultants, LLC learning events.
